DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-12 are pending.

The rejection of claims 1-12 under 35 USC 103 still stands.

Recrystallization is an age old method for purification.

Recrystallization involves taking the precipitate back into solution and then precipitating it out by change of solubility.

This change in solubility can be brought about by a change in temperature or a different solvent

Since Zoledronic acid is an acid it is obvious that as we add a base it would become soluble and dissolve. Thus raising the pH by the addition of a base would dissolve it and then if one would lower the pH it would precipitate out. And this precipitate would be purer than the original acid.

Applicants arguments are hence not found to be convincing and the rejection still stands.

Conclusion

The claims 1-12 still stand rejected.
